PRESS RELEASE

LINGUISTECH TRANSLATION SERVICES: A NEW NATIONWIDE STUDENT TRANSLATION AGENCY

Gatineau, April 3, 2012 - The Language Technology Research Center (LTRC) is proud to welcome you to the launch of LinguisTech Translation Services, a nationwide translation agency. The press conference is scheduled for Tuesday, April 24, 2012, from 10:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., in room F-0129-0130, on the ground floor of the LTRC, located at 283 Alexandre-Taché Boulevard in Gatineau. The agency will integrate students into a professional setting which will allow them to work independently in preparation for the workforce. The training will serve as a complement to the current internships available to students and recent graduates in the translation field. As a result, other translation agencies will benefit from students who have been trained at a higher level and who are already familiar with the most advanced and frequently used translation software.

Through the three-step process - Learn, Train, and Excel—LinguisTech Translation Services will provide the mentoring to guide students towards distinction in the translation field. This opportunity for workplace immersion will be open to translation students and graduates.

The event will showcase the advantages and services that will be offered by the translation office to the community. LinguisTech Translation Services will offer quick, complete, and competent services in both official languages.

With the launch of LinguisTech Translation Services, the LTRC would also like to highlight the importance of LinguisTech, an online platform inaugurated in September 2011 for translating, editing, and writing that provides tangible experience with translation tools. Another goal of this initiative is to solidify the relationships in the Canadian language sector.
